EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

BACKGROUND & CONTEXT

Claremont School of Theology (“CST”) is fully recognized and approved as one of thirteen official theological schools of The United Methodist Church, with close relationships with other Protestant denominations, especially the Disciples of Christ and United Church of Christ, the Episcopal Church, and the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. The school traces its history to 1885 with the founding of the Maclay College of Theology in San Fernando, California. In 1900, Maclay College moved to the campus of the then Methodist-affiliated University of Southern California in Los Angeles. In 1956, the School withdrew from the University and became an independent corporation, related to the Southern California-Arizona Annual Conference of The United Methodist Church. The School moved to its present Claremont site in 1957.

PROPERTY LOCATION

The City of Claremont is roughly bounded by the San Gabriel Mountains on the north, the 10 freeway on the south, the Los Angeles County border on the east, and Towne Avenue up to the 210 freeway and into the mountains on the west.

Claremont is known for its beauty and history, with its tree-lined streets, downtown area and historic buildings. It is also home to many private educational institutions hosting 6,900 students and 3,600 faculty and staff. The undergraduate colleges include Claremont McKenna College, Harvey Mudd College, Pitzer College, Pomona College and Scripps College. The two graduate institutions are Claremont Graduate University (including the Peter F. Drucker School of Management) and the Keck Graduate Institute.

PROPERTY FEATURES

The CST campus consists of approximately 16.41 acres or 714,675 square feet of land area and approximately 189,412 square feet of building area (not including fully depreciated housing). This is prime property and sits almost directly across from the world famous Claremont Colleges. A comprehensive view of the property and campus can be found at the following links:
